

M. and P. M. Games Monday; One Game Sunday

CONTEST WITH PLOWS START AT 10 O'CLOCK, AND IN AFTERNOON AT THREE O'CLOCK

Due to a misinterpretation of the schedule, a double-header between Rock Island and Cedar Rapids was announced for tomorrow at Douglas park. In reality a single game is called for at 10 o'clock, the usual hour for Sunday games. Monday's game with Moline will be played in the morning and afternoon instead of a double-header in the afternoon. The morning contest starts at 10 o'clock and the afternoon game at 3 o'clock on Monday.

GAMES TOMORROW.
Cedar Rapids at Rock Island (one game).
Moline at Bloomington.
Terre Haute at Peoria.

GAMES MONDAY.
Moline at Rock Island (morning and afternoon).
Rockford at Cedar Rapids (two games).

Peoria at Bloomington (two games).
Terre Haute at Evansville (two games).

Rock Island and Moline will play two games Monday, the observance of Memorial day, one contest in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Agreement to play the double bill in this way was reached this morning between President C. W. Mueller of the Rock Island fans' association and President Warren Giles of the Moline fans' association. The morning game will start at 10 o'clock and the afternoon game will commence at 3 o'clock.

This arrangement is certain to meet with approval of all fans. In past years when Davenport was in the league the Decoration day games between Rock Island and the Iowa city were played in the morning and afternoon and large crowds attended both contests. It serves to avoid the long, tedious afternoon of two games, with a possibility of one going into extra innings.

Need Street Cars.
Officials of the Rock Island fans' association are hoping that the street railway company does its part by having a sufficient number of extra cars on hand to take care of the huge crowd that is anticipated. To date the street car company has given exceedingly poor service and it has tended in a large

TRAP GUN "A" ROD BY TOM MARSHALL

Do people who hibernate really live? When one taboos a life in the open, the pleasure of living is practically eliminated. Men who are satisfied with club environments in conjunction with indoor sports, with women who devote their afternoons to bridge, pink teas and social climbing, automatically relegate themselves to the "house cat class," forfeiting the enjoyment of beneficial strolls along the many paths converging at the goal of longevity. An inviolable is extended without money or grace by the Queen of Health, Strength and Life—Dame Nature. Those who hearken not to her "Call of the Wild" are passing up all-year round parties staged by the catering dame in her home of interesting surroundings, luxuriant appointments and health-promoting environments. There are opportunities given to breathe unconfined and uncanonized ozone, guaranteeing aiding digestion and eliminating an acetic stomach, which in many cases is the direct cause of dissension and contention at home, and an anti-welcome from the dear people of the world at large.

One all-round sportsman who has lived a life in the open is C. D. Smith of Butte, Mont., an outdoor booster and nature-lover of the first water, a man who has certainly thrived freely from the loving cup of hospitality, common in the west. This prince of good fellows was my shooting companion on the Red Rock lakes, located near the Red Rock boundary of Montana, Idaho and Utah, about 140 miles south of Butte and 30 miles from Moline, deriving the name from the first three letters of Montana and Idaho, a typical western village located on the border between states. Upper and Lower Red Rock lakes are an extension of Red Rock river, which is now claimed as headwaters or source of the Missouri river. From Moline, a 30-mile trip was scheduled in an old-fashioned Concord stage coach dating back to frontier days with swinging springs of leather, a capacious boot for baggage, the upholstering in leather showed unusual wear. For a number of years this deep-sea-going ark had been in the Yellowstone park service. Four mountain trained horses were hitched to this coach of antiquity, and we wheeled out of Moline, the writer occupying a

BEN SMITH FOURTH IN STICK AVERAGES WITH PERCENTAGE OF .361; BENSON HITS .313

Islanders Third in the Matter of Team Fielding and Seventh in Batting.

Ben Smith, the Islanders' lanky guardian of the keystone cushion, continues to lead the local boys with the stick. According to official averages for all games, including Wednesday, compiled by Irwin M. Howe, league statistician, the Rock Island first baseman is fourth in the individual averages with a percentage of .361. Manager Dunn of Bloomington leads, but he has appeared in only 10 games. Dunn's average is .452. Thompson of Bloomington and Art Smith of Rock Island precede Smith with averages of .375 and .373, respectively.

Elmer Benson has maintained his consistent hitting and boasts an average of .313. Gloeckson, Moline's right fielder, is the batting king of the Plover Boys, with .355. Dependahl, Moline's second string catcher, in 19 games has hit at a .298 clip. Gallegos of Rock Island is swatting the apple for 264. Howard Jones, right fielder, fell into a batting slump on the road trip and his average toppled from a high figure to .261.

In the matter of team batting Rock Island stands in seventh place with an average of .244. Peoria leads with .265. In team fielding, however, the Islanders are third, Terre Haute and Bloomington being first and second. The Tot's fielding average is .368 against Bloomington's .354.

Rock Island's .353, Moline holds down the second from last position in the fielding percentage. Hanson of Peoria is the leading twirler at this stage of the season

SPORTING JAZZ BY BRUCE COPELAND

BY RIGHT OF CONQUEST.

A bashful suitor called one night To storm the maiden's heart. It was his first attempt at it—He didn't know his part. He sat far off across the room In manner circumspect, Resolved to say no word to which The lady might object. The weary evening wore away. At last he had the sand To walk across the yawning space And limply take her hand. He softly stroked her silken hair, And, daring not to speak, He bent in humble reverence And lightly kissed her cheek. Quite horrified, the maiden cried: "Your kisses I forbid! Stop them at once! I mean it!"—and He did—the chump—he did. (SHE CANNED HIM.)

Another came another night And grasped her in his arms. He lost no time in mooning o'er the manner of her charms. He didn't let his suit grow stale, Nor conversation lag—He pressed her to his throbbing heart And said: "I love you, Mag." He kissed her right upon the lips. That's what the pirate did. Quite horrified, the maiden cried: "Your kisses I forbid! I thought you were a gentleman!" Release me, right away! You cannot pull that caveman stuff! On me and get away!" She said that if he kissed again, She'd show him to the door. He grasped her in his manly arms And kissed her nine times more. (SHE MARRIED HIM.)

THE TEST.
SHE: Would you cheerfully walk 10 miles for the sake of seeing me?
HE: I sure would.
SHE: I'm so glad because I just heard your last car go.

TIRED OF HUNTING
A young Suede appeared in the city clerk's office and asked for a license.
"What kind of a license?" asked the clerk. "A hunting license."
"No," was the answer. "Aye tank aye bane hunting long enough. Aye want marriage license."

GREATER THAN ALADDIN.
I have reached the age Where the young attract By the very fact They are at a stage Where they do not carry Favors. Where is none Worth a moment's worry Under twenty-two.

ONE PROBLEM SOLVED.
"What's that crowd in front of the courthouse?"
"Men eager to serve as jurors."
"G'wan."

CROSS PURPOSES.
Man took a million years to shape His present aspect from the ape; But in a minute woman can Conceit a monkey of a man.

DOGGEYS, 6; BOSTON, 1.
Brooklyn, N. Y., May 29.—Eayrs' home run with two on base and two out in the ninth won yesterday's game for Boston from Brooklyn, 6 to 1. Fillingim and Pfeffer engaged in a pitchers' battle up to that stage. Then the Braves bunched a double, three singles and Eayrs' home run for four runs. The Dodgers rallied in the half of the ninth, but were stopped with two runs across. Score:
